Jemelin, whose mantra in life is 'don't have problems, have solutions', added: 'FSB students are our future and they really inspired me with their business ideas and impressive thought-intensive questions on succeeding in life. They have a genuine and strong passion for academia and possess many important work-ready skills.'

FSB's Deputy CEO, Mr Mohammed Zaidi, said: 'Yet again FSB students have showcased their electrifying business proposals and practice to industry professionals. It clearly has been a very exciting and memorable event and we are all absolutely delighted with how helpful and motivating Jemelin has been to our students.'

Whilst at FSB, Jemelin discussed her forthcoming FSB blog that will focus on entrepreneurship skills and her desire to return to FSB for additional events.
